TEACHING EXPERIENCE

In my years at Syracuse University College of Law, I have taught Civil Procedure, Civil Rights, Constitutional Law, Federal Courts, Law Firm, and Federal Indian Law. I also taught Federal Indian Law at Cornell Law School and taught in the Summer Program at University of New Mexico Law School. I taught Introduction to Law and Constitutional Law to undergraduates who were studying in London as part of the Syracuse University International Programs Abroad.

I participated in the formation of the Law College's Public Interest Law Firm (PILF), a clinical program in which law students work (for course credit) on civil rights and other public interest cases pending in federal and state courts. On separate occasions, I have served as the Director of PILF.
